

Fish That Love Droughts

African Lungfish

The African lungfish has a four chambered heart and lung-like organs that allow it to burrow into soft mud and breath air from openings in the ground until water returns to its habitat. It is thought that the fish can live for as long as four years under the ground without water. However, it usually only needs to wait for a couple of months.